

What does trauma-informed care look like?

Maintain predictable routines

Be aware of possible adverse childhood experiences (ACEs)

Offer developmentally appropriate choices

Know the signs and symptoms of trauma

Help children process their experiences through play

Practice open and honest communication with families

Be available to co-regulate with children

Engage in practices that support regulation

Provide unconditional care and support